

ITALY WILL BE IN THE WAR BEFORE MIDNIGHT

This Was The Declaration Made in Rome When Parliament Met

PARLIAMENT VOTES IN FAVOR OF WAR

If Italy Enters the War Against Austria it Will be Extended Also Between Italy and Germany and Turkey—Because of This The Roman Government Has Asked the United States to Care for the Diplomatic Interests of Italy in Constantinople—Not Much Doubt That Italy Will Unite With the Allies.

(By United Press)
Rome, May 20.—Before midnight Italy will enter the great European war, was the expression of members of parliament when that body went to bed today.

Members gathered around the chamber of deputies, anxiously awaiting the decision of that body.

Parliament Acts Promptly

By a vote of 365 to 54, parliament, shortly after it assembled today, passed the bill giving full power to the government to act. The news was flashed to the curious crowd around the chamber of deputies; spread all through the city and to the frontier towns of Italy. It was everywhere greeted as the forerunner of war. There was but little debate on the bill, but many Socialists voted against it.

Rumania May Follow

Despatches from Bukharest via London said that it was not certain that Rumania would follow the example of Italy. The successes of the Austria-Germans in West Galicia are thought to have halted the Rumanians.

Parliament, by its action this afternoon, gave formal approval of the war provisions of the Salandra cabinet, and the decision now rests with the ministry.

The scenes enacted were similar to those in 1859 when Italy declared war on Austria.

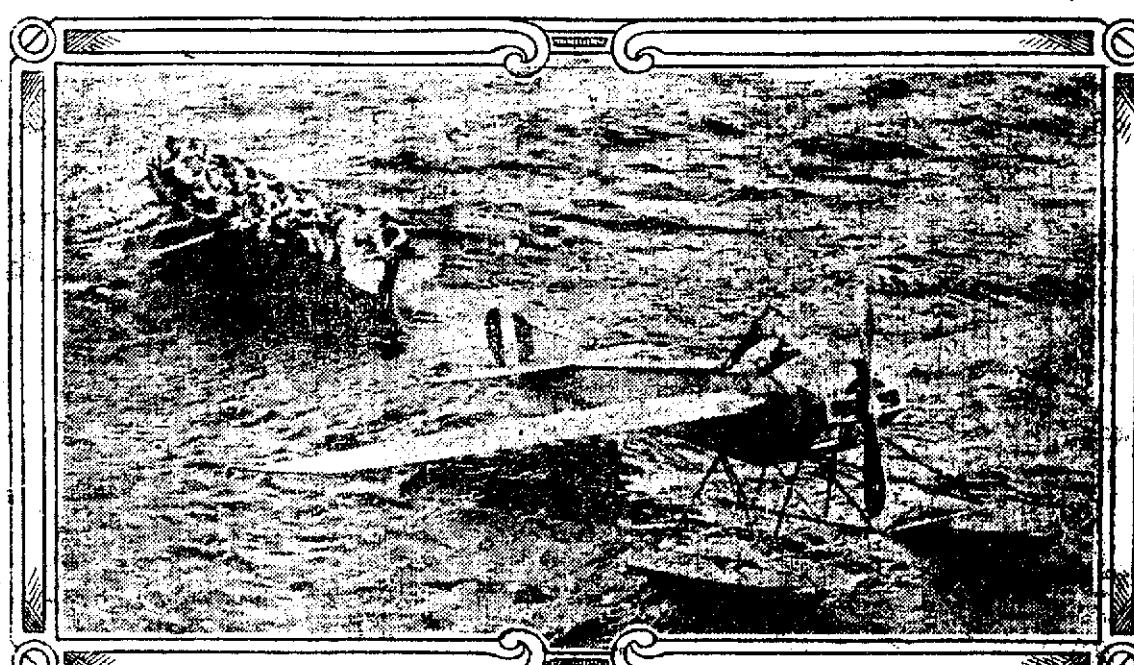

Italian Army Ready

Troops are stationed all along the frontier, awaiting the order to begin. General Cadorna and staff are already at Vicenza.

Prayer for Civilization

Pope Benedict has issued a prayer to be recited by the Italian soldiers and is a plea for victory for civilization over barbarism.

In new proposals Austria demanded a free hand in the Balkans and Albania and the Italian guarantee of political neutrality. Italy refused to accept these demands.

PELLERETTI GETS TERM IN WESTERN PENITENTIARY

Leniency of Court Due to The Recommendation of The Jury

Other Prisoners Receive Sentences From Judge Bell This Morning—Several Convicted Persons Sent Back to County Jail to Await Further Investigation.

Nine men and one woman were brought before Judge Bell this morning to have sentence passed upon their cases. Levi Garbner and Nancy Newell, of near Munson, were first called before the judge. These two had been living together for some length of time and had made charges and counter charges against each other, in which threats to poison and kill were included. The court ordered that they be held in their own recognizances to appear at September term, and followed this with the order that if they left the county a nolle prosequi would be entered in their cases.

Thomas Bennett, of near Penfield, and his father, David Bennett, were next on the list. Thomas pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving stolen goods, the goods being a rifle. They were remanded to the charge of the sheriff to await investigation as to the circumstances, and if no criminal charge is suspected the case will be nolle prosequi.

Joe Pelleretti, who was found guilty of manslaughter on an indictment charging him with having strangled his wife on the night of April 14-15, was brought before the bar of justice to receive sentence. In view of the fact that the jury had recommended the clemency of the court, the sentence pronounced, the maximum of which is 8 years and the minimum 6 years, in separate and solitary confinement in the western penitentiary—was much lighter than it would have been otherwise. When Pelleretti was asked if he had anything to say for himself he replied, "Nothing; only I am innocent." He was also directed to pay a fine of $1 and the costs of prosecution. The life insurance policy which he had taken out on his wife's life was attached by the county, which will take from this the expenses of the trial, in case the insurance company allows the claim.

William Ward, of DuBois, refused to plead guilty to a charge of desertion and was held for the September session.

Another wife beater and deserter, Walter Weaver, of Clearfield, was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term the minimum of which is one year at hard labor.

TELEPHONE PROVED VERY CONVENIENT

During the visit of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to Clearfield yesterday not the least among the enthusiastic courtesies extended the visitors by our local interests was the special telephone service supplied to the train by the Huntingdon & Clearfield Telephone company. Arrangements were previously made for special connections at various points along Third street and, as the train rolled into Market street, wires were passed through the car windows, a Pittsburgh connection established and the visitors immediately began to get in touch with their various home interests.

This Pittsburgh connection was maintained continuously from the time the train arrived until it departed except the brief interval during which the cars were being shifted when the connections were immediately re-established with the result that the Chamber of Commerce excursionists were enabled to keep in touch with their home business and direct their affairs as conveniently as though they had been in their home city. That this service on the part of H. & C. was appreciated is evidenced by the many expressions of approval and the praises given by the Pittsburgh excursionists.

One wholesale merchant who was at dinner when the train arrived at Clearfield and who then hurried out to meet his customers, returned to the train just a few minutes before its departure, his Pittsburgh number was called, he received a complete report from his office, putting him in touch with the general business news concerning matters requiring his attention, gave instructions for their execution and closed his conversation after the train had started to pull out.

Provisions of Workmen's Compensation Law

EMPLOYERS LIABLE

Will Increase Application of Safety Devices and Methods in the State

Rates of Compensation for Workmen Injured in Any Occupation Embraced in the Provisions of the Act and Amounts to be Paid to Surviving Widows and Children in Case of the Accidental Death of the Wage Earner—No Compensation to Any One Individual to Exceed $1000—Administration of the Law.

(By United Press)

Harrisburg, May 20.—The seven measures comprising the workmen's compensation act, passed by the 1915 session of the state legislature, constitute the biggest piece of legislation along economic lines that has been spread upon the statute books of Pennsylvania in a half century. While it is not certain that the constitutionality of the act will not be attacked by various employers, Governor Brumbaugh, Attorney General Brown and others believe that the act will stand the final test.

The new law will bring upwards of 2,000,000 working people of this state within its provisions and is expected to lessen human suffering by causing a more rigorous application of safety devices and methods, and to re-pay, in some measure, those individuals and their dependents who suffer directly from accidents in mill-wheels of industry.

The seven statutes comprising the workmen's compensation act provide:

1. For the defining of employers' liability and the stipulation of the amounts of compensation.
2. For the administration of the act.
3. For the creation of a state fund for the insurance of compensation.
4. For the establishment of employers' mutual liability insurance associations.
5. For protecting employees by strict regulations of workmen's compensation policies issued to employers by commercial insurance companies.
6. For exempting domestic and agricultural workers from the provisions of the act.
7. For the repeal of a section of the constitution which would make the new act inoperative.

The workmen's compensation act will be effective Jan. 1, 1916. The first section of the act makes the employer liable for the injuries suffered by his workmen, and abolishes the old common law defense of negligence of "fellow servants." It provides that every employer shall insure the payment of compensation, unless given exemption by the state bureau.

Rate of Compensation

The rate of compensation shall be: For first 500 weeks total disability, 50 per cent of the wages of the injured employee, to amount to not more than $10 nor less than $5 per week; unless employee received less than $5 wages weekly, in latter instance to be paid actual wage. The aggregate amount to be paid any employee shall not be over $4,000. If the employee is only partially disabled, he shall be compensated as above. No payments are made until two weeks after employee is incapacitated.

For the loss of a hand, an employee shall be paid 50 per cent for 215 weeks; foot, 150 weeks; leg 215 weeks eye, 125 weeks, loss of both arms, eyes, hands or feet shall constitute total disability. The employer shall furnish hospital and medical service.

In case of death the following rates of compensation shall be paid for 300 weeks:

To child or children if no widow or widower, 25 per cent of wages of deceased, with 10 per cent additional for each child in excess of two, with maximum of 50 per cent to be paid guardians.

To widow or widower, with one child 45 per cent of wages of deceased; with two children 50 per cent; three children 55 per cent and four 60 per cent.

If neither widow or widower or children survive, then to any dependent 20 per cent of deceased's wages.

If brother or sister dependent, 15 per cent for one brother or sister and 5 per cent for each additional brother or sister, with 25 per cent as maximum.

Children include step, adopted, and posthumous. Compensation shall continue until death.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT AT SCHOOL

In the high school auditorium this morning, under the auspices of the Womans club, an anti-tuberculosis exhibition was held.

W. L. Lewis, the secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who is greatly interested along that line, having had previous experience of the same kind in Philadelphia, acted as chairman of the meeting.

Mrs. E. E. Jameson is chairman of the Womans club of this city, which is a branch of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. Dr. W. S. Piper gave a very interesting and able address on the subject of "tuberculosis." E. E. Jameson read a paper on "Pure Milk" Literature dealing with the subject under discussion was distributed.

This meeting this morning marks the beginning of an extended campaign that will be waged by the Womans club. Tomorrow a similar meeting will be held in the Market street school. The campaign will end with an exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. The committee in charge is as follows: Mrs. William A. Magerty, Mrs. E. E. Jameson and Miss Annie Williams.

STATE INQUIRES ABOUT CLEARFIELD GARBAGE PLANT

Wants to Know When Borough Will Begin Work on The Same

Council Ready to Order Work on Construction of an Incinerating Plant as Soon as Legal Difficulties Are Overcome—Other Matters Before Lawmakers.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of town council was held last evening with ten members present. Thomas Beahan, in the absence of President Kerr, acted as president. The report of Treasurer Wright showed balance of $23,233.00 in the treasury.

The street commissioner reported the progress of the street work and the completion of the sanitation sewer on Ninth street at a cost of $310. This amount will be assessed against the abutting property owners.

The borough engineer recommended that work on the new sewer on Stinky run be started, and also reported on other engineering matters.

The board of health reported on a letter received from the state board of health in regard to the garbage plant. The latter was notified that the funds are in readiness for the construction of an incinerator, the work to begin as soon as the legal matters in the case are disposed of.

Dr. A. M. Woodward was present and asked that the alley leading to Cherry street from Guilich avenue and West Cherry street be opened.

Ed. Pooler, of the Second ward, asked that the alley in the rear of his property on Park avenue be graded. Both the foregoing matters were referred to the street committee.

The street committee was directed to lower the walk in front of the Kennard property on the corner of Fourth and Margaretta streets.

This committee was also directed to proceed with the work of procuring bids for material with which to construct the new conduit on Stinky run with the purpose of getting this work started as soon as possible.

The fire alarm apparatus arrived yesterday and the work of installing same will likely begin the first of next week.

Friday night's musical entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium will be the musical treat of the year. An elaborate program has been arranged for advanced pupils of the Susquehanna College of Music, which will appeal strongly to the musically inclined. N 19-20.

Anton Kuepferle, a Spy, Commits Suicide in Jail

(By United Press)

London, May 20.—Anton Kuepferle, formerly a resident of New York, was arrested in London with papers which showed the names of George Herbert, the son of the Duke of Devonshire, and other prominent persons. Kuepferle was arrested on the charge of being a spy and a member of the German secret service. He was arrested in London on May 16. In a statement made at Scotland Yard, Kuepferle said he was born in Switzerland in 1887. He left home at the age of 16 for London. In that city at the age of 16 he went to work for a firm of clothiers by the name of Sarrail Brothers. Eight years later, he went into business for himself. He was naturalized May 3, 1908.

(By United Press)

Washington, May 20.—Germany has unofficially acquiesced generally in the principal demands of President Wilson's note demanding that Americans be protected and safeguarded on the high seas, but takes the ground that it is contrary to international law to protect Americans on any other than legally American-registered vessels or on belligerent merchantmen.

This is the general outline of the answer which will be given to America, as reported to Ambassador Gerard.

Will Help to Settlements

A strong note from President Wilson to Great Britain, calling that nation to account for illegal interference with American commerce and the commerce of other neutral nations, is counted upon to aid the amicable settlement of difficulties with Germany compliance with the terms presented in the president's note upon the sinking of the Lusitania.

There is no question that ample reason exists why the note should be addressed to Great Britain. But this reason has existed with just as great force, since the beginning of the war.

EDUCATION EASY IN UNITED STATES

It has been said, and truly, too, that the American citizen does not appreciate the blessings which are provided him through the common schools. It has been proven that foreigners in this country see and take advantage of the opportunities presented to them to acquire an education in the schools of the United States. It has been found that the children of foreign residents are quick to learn and love to go to school. In their classes they often excel the American pupils and win honors which the American children regard indifferently.

Russian people have been held up by Germany as a menace to "culture" and civilization, but Russian children in the United States display none of the traits of the heathen. One little Russian girl, a student in the Denver university, Colorado, may be taken as a fair example of how the children of alien parents look upon education and of how highly they regard the boon of public schools. This little Russian has just finished a four years course in three years, and to show her appreciation of America and American educational facilities she says:

"I like American schools better than Russian. There is more informality. Here the teachers are more your friends and not set apart at a great distance as in Russian schools.

"It is so easy to learn here in America. The chance is so good. Education costs so much less. And at night, many of them, do not seem to care to study. In Russia it is a burning to learn and they have no chance. In America the chance is so easy that it is not appreciated."

American children have every opportunity to become well educated, but in the days of money worship and love for worldly pomp and social prominence too many American mothers fail to value an education as they should. It is not likely that such instances as the above will move the parents of American children to change their views regarding school privileges, and thus it will be left to the children of foreign residents to attain those higher standards of living which make for good citizenship and fit the children of men for the duties which they are expected to perform when they reach maturity.

All things come to him who waits—even the bill collector.

SWAT THE FLY AND SWAT HARD

The weather has not been too cool to prevent the fly from emerging from his winter retreat and become an active agent in spreading disease germs. The advance heralds of the fly army are here and they are spying out the filthy spots in the town upon which the army will camp through the long summer months, foraging from the filth trenches into the homes of the citizens.

If the people of Clearfield desire to prevent the multiplication of flies and to lessen the danger of having contagious and infectious diseases become epidemic in the town they will swat the fly that is here now and reduce the number of flies which otherwise will make their appearance later.

Far better than swatting the flies is to remove every vestige of filth upon which they thrive. Everything which attracts flies should be destroyed or buried out of sight. If the flies have nothing to feed upon they will not tarry long about the premises of a citizen. A little attention to extra cleanliness at this time may prevent suffering and probable death among the infant population of Clearfield this summer.

Had the kaiser been placed in an insane asylum ten years ago there would not have been a war in Europe today.

GERMANY'S ANSWER NEXT WEEK

Germany's answer to the note of President Wilson that submarine murder of women and children on the high seas shall cease is not expected until next week, and upon the tone of the German statement will depend whether or not the United States government will be compelled to send to Berlin a more positive statement as to the position of this country in the matter of submarine warfare upon neutral nations.

The intimation from Berlin is that Germany will not accede to the request of the American government that submarine warfare on neutral vessels or on vessels carrying neutrals shall cease. With her usual disregard for the truth Germany insists that England was to blame for the loss of American lives on the Lusitania because she used the ship as a carrier of munitions of war. If this shall be the gist of the German note then the president will have to make his protest much stronger than his original declaration of Germany's methods of naval warfare.

The German government is throwing the William P. Fry case to the winds, and is answering the president's note by insisting that the many is not in the majority. It is plain to see that the Fry case should be handled through diplomatic channels, and Germany's answer in this respect has served to increase the feeling of animosity against the German government among the American people.

Clearfield citizens did themselves proud in their entertainment of the Pittsburgh visitors yesterday, and it is hoped that the enthusiasm aroused among the people of town will not die out suddenly.

Time is Drawing Short to Plan Work on Roads

Harrisburg, May 20.—Has your county fallen into line for the project? The time is drawing nearer each day. Better get together and start a county "State-wide Good Roads Day" association. Remember, the date is Wednesday, May 26.

The state highway department, which is doing all that it can to arouse interest in the plan, reports that the enthusiasm manifested in many of the counties indicates that the "State-wide Good Roads Day" is going to be successful beyond all expectations.

Somerset county is more fortunate than some other counties in having state highways, but it is enthusiastic in its support of the "State-wide Good Roads Day" plan. The board of trade of Somerset has taken the lead in making arrangements for the day and is cooperating with the Myersdale Commercial club, the Boswell chamber of commerce, the Salisbury civic club and the Windber

LIFE'S SONG

I think of thee—

When kindly night is falling,

When star to star is calling,

When moon and sky in quiet hours descend,

When o'er my head the azure heavens bend;

In dusk or dawn, in travail, or, in strife,

In all the golden interludes of life—I think of thee.

I think of thee—

When day's long tasks are o'er,

In summer silence by the vine-clad door;

In busy throngs and haunts of teeming care,

In gentle moments where no shadows fare;

In light and dark, in dusk and dawn for eyes,

When morning breaks, when twilight haunts the sky—I think of thee.

I think of thee—

When round me thunders rattle,

When I stand forth to face and fight the battle;

In hours of rest, in journey or in playing,

In moments filled with fancies gently straying;

In hope, in trust, in courage, dread and doubt;

In deep, in dreams when star by star goes out—I think of thee.

2,000,000 LABORERS INTERESTED

time to children until 15 years old at rate of 15 per cent. of wages for each child, 10 per cent. additional for each additional child, with a maximum of 50 per cent. payable.

Compensation to alien dependent widows and children, not resident of U. S. shall be 2-3 of amount in each case for residents. However, an employer may commute at any time all future installments to any alien dependent, except widows and children.

The administration of the workmen's compensation act shall be by the bureau of workmen's compensation in the department of labor.

The bureau shall consist of three commissioners, appointed by the commissioner of the department, who shall receive $7,000 annually. They are to be selected quadrennially, and approved by the governor. The chairman who receives $500 additionally annually, is designated by the commissioner.

The bureau has authority to appoint the state into ten districts and appoint ten referees at $2,500 annually, to have charge of all claims for compensation. The bureau would hear and determine petitions taken from the referee. The commissioner, and referees would have power to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, require production of documents, etc. and to affix costs of hearings.

Each referee would have one clerk at $1,000 annually, and a messenger at $1,000. The bureau could employ three clerks at $2,000 and 24 at $1,400. The commissioners would have a joint secretariat at $1,000.

State Insurance Fund

The creation and administration of a state fund for insurance of compensation for injuries to employees and subscribers thereto will be in the hands of the State Workmen's Insurance board. This consists of the commissioner of labor, John P. Jackson, Commissioner of Insurance, Charles Johnson and State Treasurer Young.

The duties of the board will be to publish annually on October 1 schedule of premiums or rate of insurance for employers.

To fix rates for applicants (employers) according to the nature of their business and to stipulate requirements for safety for workmen and to make rules that would tend to prevent accidents.

To make contracts for the supplying of medical and hospital services.

Five per cent. of all premiums paid by employers would be set aside for creating a surplus to cover the catastrophe hazard. At the end of each year if any portion of the premiums paid remain, after deducting compensations, and expenses, it shall be distributed among the subscribers according to proportionate premium paid or credited to next year's insurance.

A company which is not a subscriber to the state fund may apply for state insurance by paying past premium for the year and amount of premium for subsequent years.

For the purpose of the act, the state shall be divided into ten districts.

Mutual Liability Association

When 20 or more employers have in the aggregate not less than 5,000 employees in Pennsylvania, they may form a mutual liability association.

An incorporated mutual liability insurance association, for the purpose of insuring themselves and such other employers as may become subscribers to the association for paying workmen's compensation. These associations may have salaried officers. The boards of directors shall make reasonable rules and regulations for the prevention of injuries upon the premises of subscribers. The boards would determine the amount of premiums which subscribers shall pay, according to the risk involved. Subscribers who neglected to provide safety regulations could be ousted from the association for his premiums boosted. Five per cent. of premiums shall be set aside to cover the catastrophe hazard and to guarantee of safety. All acts of the board of directors would be subject to approval of the state bureau. A mutual liability association would have to be safely invested.

Protection of Compensation

An additional guarantee of compensation, when employers are insured by commercial companies, is found in the following:

"No policy of insurance against liability shall be made unless the same shall contain the agreement of the insured that in the event of the failure of the insured to pay promptly an installment of compensation to an injured employee or dependents that the obligation shall not be affected by any default of the insured after the accident, in the payment of premiums."

"Such agreement shall be a direct promise to such injured employee and dependents enforceable by court action."

The state workmen's compensation fund and every insurance association or corporation shall file with the commissioner of insurance its classification of risks and premiums for approval. The insurance commissioner has power to revoke any license.

CHECKS FOR LARGE AMOUNTS

One Drawn for Forty Nine Million Dollars Set a High Record Recently.

Last Wednesday Kuhn Loeb & Co. turned a check for $49,000,000 over to the Pennsylvania railroad in payment for the bonds recently purchased. That check was $900,000 larger as far as Wall street could recall this week than any which ever passed through the financial district.

On May 7, 1904, Secretary Shaw left Washington for New York with a check in his pocket for $10,000,000 drawn to J. P. Morgan & Co. who represented the French syndicate in the Panama canal transaction. That same year, Secretary Shaw turned a check for $40,000,000 over to Mexico in connection with the preface of government bonds.

Any number of checks for smaller amounts were recalled. On Feb. 8, 1900, $9,000,000 was drawn in connection with the purchase by Lake Shore of Reading stock. A year ago one for $2,000,000 was drawn on the Bank of Commerce for $2,000,000 to pay for city bonds. Only a few weeks ago a check for $18,000,000 drawn by the Consolidated Gas, passed through the National City bank.

"I can recall 20 years ago," an official of one of the large Wall street institutions said, "when a crowd would gather around our bank to get a look at a check for $100,000. Nowadays no attention is paid to a check for $1,000,000 or $10,000,000 except to make the necessary routine arrangements to prevent a disturbance of balance."

When that remark was repeated in a well-known international banker he replied with a laugh. "Sometimes they don't even do that." —New York Evening Post

"Salomy Jane"

This famous play, a dramatization of Bert Harte's novel will be presented at the opera house on Friday night in 6 reels. The scene of the play is laid in Hangtown, California's most notorious mining town in the days of the rush for gold, when there was no law except that of each man for himself and the survival of the one who could pull a gun quickest. Salomy Jane is the daughter of one of the town's inhabitants, who has emigrated from Kentucky and is the object of the affections of every single man in the camp. Rufe is her choice and when Baldwin insults her she offers to marry him, providing he kills Baldwin. He is afraid to do this, but when "The Man" kills Baldwin for betraying his sister, he tells Salomy that he did the deed and they become engaged, but not for long for Rufe is soon shown up in his true colors. The picture is full of exciting incidents and portrays the life in '49 when so much history was made.

The law requires that every teacher employed to teach in the public schools of this commonwealth must be a person of good moral character, and must be at least eighteen years of age. Applicants attending summer schools should take the examination at the close of their schools. Persons attending school outside of the county may enter the class most convenient for them. For provisional certificates the examination in pedagogy will be based on the following texts: Gregory's "Better Schools," and Seeley's "New School Management," or the "Rural School, Its Methods and Management," may be substituted for the latter.

Each applicant on entering the class will give the superintendent a self-addressed stamped envelope, accompanied with a recommendation as to his or her moral character.

Teachers whose certificates average 1-4 and who present testimonials from their boards certifying that they have taught two successful terms of school are eligible to enter the professional examination. The books required in pedagogy for professional certificates are Seeley's "New School Management," and Cutler and Stone, "The Rural School."

A professional spirit, progressive scholarship and the ability to teach effectively are necessary qualifications to merit a professional certificate.

All teachers taking the examination must be familiar with the requirements of the State Course of Study.

One of the best games of baseball of this season was played Wednesday afternoon on the Curwensville diamond when the Clearfield high school team met defeat in the eleventh inning when Clark, of the Curwensville high school, rolled one to short, which was badly handled, scoring Lantz. Score, 6-5.

The Clearfield team put up a good game and tried to introduce some new rules, but does not seem to get much support from its home town.

KENT'S LAST THROW

By ELLA DEAN RICHMOND.

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

From early boyhood Kent Marvin had been a "thrower." Quick of eye, sure of nerve, just as certain persons were born with some predominating skill, his lay in accuracy of aim. No one had ever excelled him in throwing a bean bag, or in duck-on-the-rock, or at quoits. Later on he became the champion pitcher of the local baseball team. He did not make a profession or trade of it, but he could knock an apple off a tree branch with a pebble every time. He threw a bouquet straight into the arms of pretty Lina Westworth when she graduated, and that led to their rare and charming love romance.

Of late Kent had got to throwing something else—dice, at the village billiard hall. This had led to his associating with a pretty rapid crowd. Among them was a profligate idler with plenty of money named Harper Winston. If Kent had analyzed affairs he would have found that Winston was scheming to discredit him with Lina so as to win her for himself.

Two nights previous down at the billiard hall Winston had introduced Kent and his friends to a city friend, Mr. Halpin he called him. They had drank considerable and Kent escorted Halpin to the hotel. The next morning a friend of Kent came to him and told him that Halpin had lost a diamond ring and accused Kent of stealing it, as he was the last person with him the night previous.

Things looked pretty black for Kent. He hid in the room of a friend all that day. He made up his mind that Lina would have nothing further to do with an accused thief. In a fit of desperation Kent decided to leave the village for good and started to do so at midnight, when he saw the town marshal approaching him.

Kent rushed down a side street out of sight of the marshal. Then a square farther on as he saw a pedestrian approaching him he leaped a fence and ran through a garden. His overstrained fears led him to seek a hiding place. He made out a large log house. It was empty. Kent crawled into it.

"What to do next?" he panted helplessly. "Oh, I am in a terrible fix!"

As he lay among the straw, a hunted fugitive, Kent reflected how his careless habits had probably cost him the position of his life. Two weeks previous a friend had suggested that he apply to the railway mail service in the city for an appointment. Kent did so, and wonderfully attracted the attention and admiration of the agent of the government with the accuracy and swiftness with which he was able to throw mail. He was advised that his references would be looked up and if he passed muster he would be offered a good position. Now, an accused thief, they would scarcely consider him.

Kent fell asleep. He was awakened perhaps two hours later by the sound of low voices. Peering out, he saw two men, strangers to him.

"Look here," one of them was saying, "we've held up one man and looted four houses. There's one more in the block. You rest the booty and guard it while I see if there's anything else worth getting. Then we'll go to our automobile in the woods and speed for the city. We'll do up these country yahoos in good style, while we're about it."

"Burglars! and their booty is in that satchel!" breathed Kent.

One of the men disappeared. The other set his foot on the satchel and kept guard. A sudden impulse flashed through the mind of Kent Marvin. He would outwit these bold schemers.

He reached out and seized the limb of the sentinel burglar. At the same time he imitated the snarling bark of a dog. Naturally the burglar was startled and fell back.

In an instant Kent was out of the dog house and on his feet. He snatched up the satchel.

"Drop that! Who are you?" and the burglar, partly recovering himself, flashed a revolver.

Just then Kent saw a light in an upper room of the despoiled mansion. Some one was awake there. He gave the satchel a swing. As "a thrower" he was at his best. It described an accurate parabola curve.

Crash! bang! clatter!—through the window it went, while Kent shouted lustily:

"Burglars—phone for the police!"

The burglar fired at Kent. The shot missed him. He stooped and picked up a heavy piece of wood. Again a fling. Down went the burglar senseless, and as his companion appeared Kent grappled with him and held him till two servants came rushing from the mansion.

His part in recovering some $5,000 stolen booty would have helped Kent in public estimation anyway, but a discovery cleared him of all taint of crime.

The man the burglars had robbed on the street was Harper Winston, and among their booty was found the missing diamond ring, evidencing a conspiracy and clearing Kent.

The next day there came a notification from the railway postal service awarding Kent the coveted position.

His reputation earnest and sincere, softened fair Lina's heart. He was through throwing dice, his chances away, and other foolish actions. Lina believed him and threw herself in his arms and forgave him.

Coal Companies Say Roads Discriminate

Washington May 19.—Charging discrimination and a violation of the act to regulate commerce, the Dilltown Smokeless Coal company of Brookville, Jefferson county, Pennsylvania, has filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the Pennsylvania and Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad. S. S. Henderson, vice President of the coal company, signs the complaint.

The coal mines of the Dilltown company are located in Indiana county, along the Black Lick branch of the Cresson division of the Pennsylvania railroad. The market in question is Buffalo and Black Rock, N. Y. It is alleged that the defendant carriers discriminate against the Dilltown company and in favor of its competitors, whose mines are but a few miles away. According to the brief of Vice President Henderson, the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad refuses to furnish empty cars for the loading of the complainant's bituminous coal, but almost daily gives adequate facilities to competing concerns, despite the fact that the Dilltown company has had constructed, at its own expense, a siding from the railroad to the coal works. It is charged against the Pennsylvania railroad that it will not accept shipments from the Dilltown company for less than $1.25 per ton to Buffalo and Black Rock, but carries coal for competing concerns at a rate of $1.10 per ton.

TWO EXCELLENT CROPS

Benefit of Use of Leguminous Crops Just Appreciated.

Aggressive Campaign Waged for Past Few Years in Interest of Better Farming Has Not Been Without Its Reward.

(By T. PARKER.)

The soy bean, also known as Japan pea and soja bean, is one of the many good things that have come to us from Asia. The writer first grew it in 1872, but its real worth and value have not been appreciated by us until within the last few years.

As a forage crop, especially for hogs, it is exceptionally fine. For best results the hogs should be turned on them about the time the bean in the pod has reached its full size, and before it begins to harden while the leaves are still green. The hogs will first eat the leaves, then the remainder of the plant until there is only the hard stalk left.

Soy beans require good preparation of the soil. Slipshod methods usually result in a failure of the crop. They may either be sown broadcast at the rate of a bushel per acre or planted in rows and cultivated. The latter plan gives best results. In purchasing seed, buy only bright, plump seed, the vitality of which is guaranteed.

Soy bean hay is of the finest and most nutritious quality. When cut at the proper stage of growth and well cured, it is relished by all kinds of stock.

The velvet bean is an important crop for the purpose of soil improvement, especially in cotton-growing territory. This plant has been grown in Florida and other southern states for a number of years. It is a rank-growing grass, the vines often growing fifteen or more feet in length under favorable conditions. The seed can be broadcasted or planted in rows, but best results will be obtained when planted in rows and cultivated. The rows should be four or five feet apart and the hills two to three feet apart in the rows. Plant about three beans to the hill.

ERRORS IN FEEDING PROTEIN

Plenty of Right Kind of Feed Is Required to Run Milk Machine to Its Full Limit.

It is a great mistake to give the cow indifferent care until her milk flow has greatly diminished, then try, by feeding her heavy, to get her back to her full flow.

The dairyman who withholds protein foods until the cows have cleaned up all roughage will soon learn the folly of his ways when he adds the figures of his milk checks.

A worse mistake than high protein feeding is made by many farmers. That mistake is not feeding enough of anything.

The man who goes into the dairy business thinking that selecting good cows and compounding balanced rations is all he needs to understand is sure to wake up a sadder and wiser man.

It requires plenty of feed to run the cow machine to its full limits. This limit varies more than most people seem to think.

Philadelphia Quality Mowers Have stood the test of a third of a century, and while the patterns have been improved very generally and the claims put forth that this is the Other Machine was "Just as Good as the Philadelphia," the quality has not been approached by any other manufacturer.

$16,000,000 WORTH OF CARS ORDERED

Orders for $16,000,000 worth of freight cars were given Tuesday by the Pennsylvania railroad. This is by far the largest expenditure of money for equipment made by a railroad in several years and is taken as indication of the return of prosperity. Work upon these orders will give employment to thousands of men all over the country.

The $16,000,000 is the greater part of the $20,000,000 recently appropriated by the Pennsylvania for the replacement of its rolling stock. The other $4,000,000 will be spent by the railroad itself in the manufacture of locomotives at its Altoona shops. All the money will be spent during this year.

The orders given yesterday are for 14,043 cars of all kinds for use on the lines both east and west of Pittsburg. In this total are included 3500 box cars, 324 refrigerator cars, 3000 gondola cars and 7219 hopper cars.

Supervisors Should Keep Accurate Record

Township supervisors should bear in mind that the state highway department would like to have the secretary of each board of supervisors keep an accurate account of the number of men and teams they have on the roads and the number of dollars worth of work done by them on "Good Roads Day" sent to Clearfield office.

The object is two fold; first, to determine the exact results of the good roads day in a financial way, and second, that there may be some competition among different townships, in order that the result may be as great as could possibly be expected and arouse a desire for each township to try to do the most work.

TO SUIT THE FIGURE

Lines of Costume Must Be Carefully Fashioned.

Combinations and Blending of Colors and Materials Also Require the Most Careful Manipulation—Dainty Design Shown.

It is one of the important features of the fashions that, with all the tendency to frills and ruffles, there is usually a symmetrical arrangement of trimming. This prevents the general ensemble from assuming the mixed-up appearance that might result if this rule were not observed. There are, in the achievement of such "balance," innumerable subtle details that, though they tax the ingenuity of the designer, perhaps, to the utmost, pass unnoticed or at least unappreciated by the casual observer.

Combinations and blending of colors and materials require careful manipulation if they are to be successful, and incidental trimming should be of such a nature as to preserve the intended character of the lines of a costume. Above all, the lines should be so constructed that they will conform in length and breadth to suit the figure they are to adorn.

The dainty design illustrated, for instance, would suit none other than a slender, rather tall young figure. It is essentially a youthful frock and designed for dancing and evening wear.

One of the New Dance Frocks.

with numerous dainty details that make of it a veritable confection.

It is carried out in white chiffon with a quaint little bolero of turquoise tulle. Note how prettily the overlapping end is caught through eyelets in the other side. There is a short-sleeved underbust of white chiffon with snow-white edges bound flatly in white tulle. The full skirt is garnished with two rows of double head in the blue tulle, while the tunic, short in front and long in back shows the saw-tooth edges again bound in white tulle.

Pink roses weight the ends of short ribbon streamers all around the waist and add the final irresistible touch.

HATS OF THE SUIT MATERIAL

Parisian Milliner Has Evolved Idea That American Women Will Be Sure to Take Up.

The well-dressed Parisienne is wearing now a small, smart hat made of straw and cloth in combination; the cloth being a bit of the same fabric used for stunning tailored suits. One of these hats, just brought over from Madeline—the originator of the idea—is of bronze milan straw with a crown in blocked effect made of tan covert cloth. The underbrim is of the straw and bands of straw are stitched over cloth to form the upper side of the brim. Around the high crown are three bands of grosgrain ribbon, one cream white, the next tan color, the next brown. The ribbons pass through a pearl buckle at the front of the hat and are tied in a flat, smart bow at the back. These little tailored hats—elongated in shape and with very narrow brims that drop over the hair or turn up in turban style—are an important style note of the spring and are the rage in Paris just now.

For some time women have been ordering button boots with tops made of material to match the tailored suit; but hats of the same material are rather a new note. In Paris the little tailored suit hat is called Le Chapeau-Tailleur and one sees it made of covert, of broadcloth, of tulle, of mohair and wool mixtures, of gabardine and of serge, with always the underbrim of straw and the simple band and buckle trimming originated by Madeline. With these small, trim hats are worn veils of tulle or bladders mesh drawn neatly under a veil pin at the back and not floating free, as veils are worn with sailor shapes that have sufficient width of brim to support the veil in canopy effect.

HAITIANS NOT ALL SAVAGES

Iceland Has a Literature of Its Own and Many Refined and Educated People.

Very few are familiar with conditions in Haiti. The fact that it has a literature, groups of refined and educated people in all the important towns, distinguished doctors and lawyers who would rank high in any country, is not at all generally known.

The official language of the country is French, and all educated persons, of course, speak this language. The books of Haitian authors are written in this language. The native literature is now becoming considerable, embraces almost all departments and some of it is of a high order. The early writers wrote history and ephemeral poetry. The principal historians are Madiou and Ardouin, who both wrote well-known histories of Haiti. Mr. J. N. Leger, ex-minister to the United States, has also written an interesting history of Haiti.

Within the last few years Mr. Magloire has published a history of Haitian revolutions. Among the writers of romance, Demessure Delorme, who has been called the father of Haitian literature, takes first place. He wrote "Francisco," "Les Theoriciens au Pouvoir" and "La Hollande." He was decorated by the emperor of Germany, the pope and the sultan of Turkey. Frederic Marcelin, Ferdinand Hibbert, Antoine Innocent and others have written very interesting stories portraying Haitian life, manners and customs.

Docks Building at Bombay.

Bombay is possessed of the biggest docks east of Suez, but the port has been wanting in respect of facilities for taking railway borne goods to the dock side and vice versa. This defect is being remedied little by little by the extension of the Port Trust railway from one end of the port to the other, and seven stations are to be opened for goods traffic during the course of a month.

ITALY WILL BE IN THE WAR BEFORE MIDNIGHT

This Was The Declaration Made in Rome When Parliament Met

PARLIAMENT VOTES IN FAVOR OF WAR

If Italy Enters the War Against Austria it Will be Extended Also Between Italy and Germany and Turkey—Because of This The Roman Government Has Asked the United States to Care for the Diplomatic Interests of Italy in Constantinople—Not Much Doubt That Italy Will Unite With the Allies.

(By United Press)
Rome, May 20.—Before midnight Italy will enter the great European war, was the expression of members of parliament when that body went to bed today.

Members gathered around the chamber of deputies, anxiously awaiting the decision of that body.

Parliament Acts Promptly

By a vote of 365 to 54, parliament, shortly after it assembled today, passed the bill giving full power to the government to act. The news was flashed to the curious crowd around the chamber of deputies; spread all through the city and to the frontier towns of Italy. It was everywhere greeted as the forerunner of war. There was but little debate on the bill, but many Socialists voted against it.

Rumania May Follow

Despatches from Bukharest via London said that it was not certain that Rumania would follow the example of Italy. The successes of the Austria-Germans in West Galicia are thought to have halted the Rumanians.

Parliament, by its action this afternoon, gave formal approval of the war provisions of the Salandra cabinet, and the decision now rests with the ministry.

The scenes enacted were similar to those in 1859 when Italy declared war on Austria.

Italian Army Ready

Troops are stationed all along the frontier, awaiting the order to begin. General Cadorna and staff are already at Vicenza.

Prayer for Civilization

Pope Benedict has issued a prayer to be recited by the Italian soldiers and is a plea for victory for civilization over barbarism.

In new proposals Austria demanded a free hand in the Balkans and Albania and the Italian guarantee of political neutrality. Italy refused to accept these demands.

PELLERETTI GETS TERM IN WESTERN PENITENTIARY

Leniency of Court Due to The Recommendation of The Jury

Other Prisoners Receive Sentences From Judge Bell This Morning—Several Convicted Persons Sent Back to County Jail to Await Further Investigation.

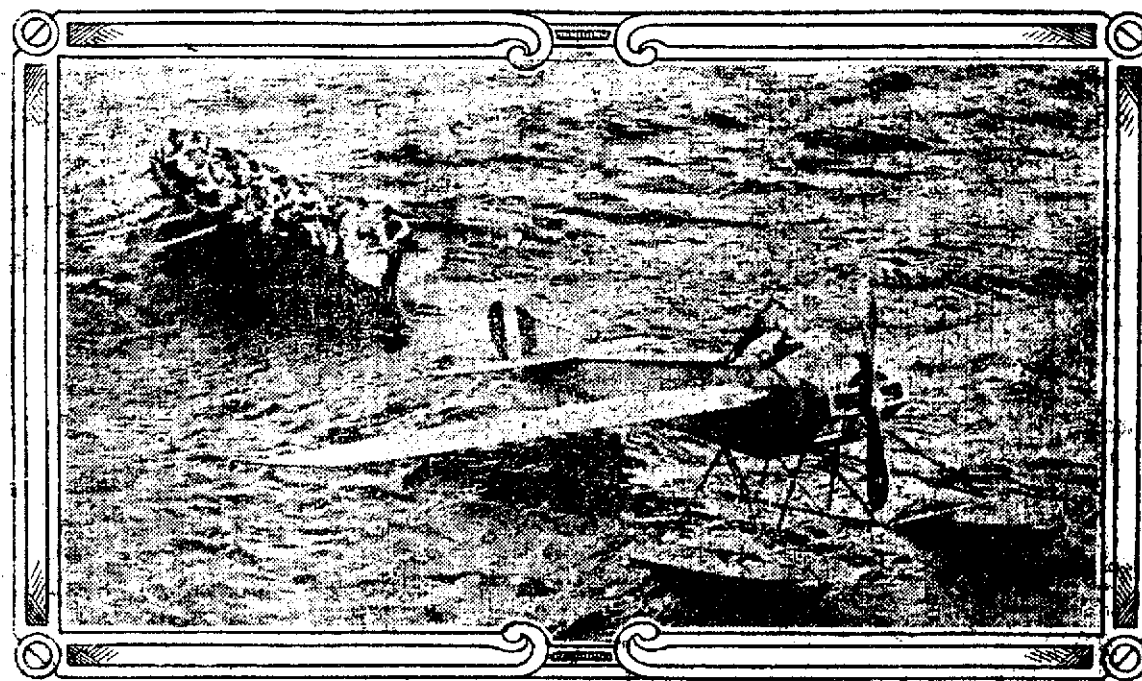

Nine men and one woman were brought before Judge Bell this morning to have sentence passed upon their cases. Levi Garbner and Nancy Newell, of near Munson, were first called before the judge. These two had been living together for some length of time and had made charges and counter charges against each other, in which threats to poison and kill were included. The court ordered that they be held in their own recognizances to appear at September term, and followed this with the order that if they left the county a nolle proes would be entered in their cases.

Thomas Bennett, of near Penfield, and his father, David Bennett, were next on the list. Thomas pleaded guilty to the charge of receiving stolen goods, the goods being a rifle. They were remanded to the charge of the sheriff to await investigation as to the circumstances, and if no criminal charge is suspected the case will be nolle prossed.

Joe Pelleretti, who was found guilty of manslaughter on an indictment charging him with having strangled his wife on the night of April 14-15, was brought before the bar of justice to receive sentence. In view of the fact that the jury had recommended the clemency of the court, the sentence pronounced, the maximum of which is 8 years and the minimum 6 years, in separate and solitary confinement in the western penitentiary—was much lighter than it would have been otherwise. When Pelleretti was asked if he had anything to say for himself he replied, "Nothing; only I am innocent." He was also directed to pay a fine of $1 and the costs of prosecution. The life insurance policy which he had taken out on his wife's life was attached by the county, which will take from this the expenses of the trial, in case the insurance company allows the claim.

William Ward, of DuBois, refused to plead guilty to a charge of desertion and was held for the September session.

Another wife beater and deserter, Walter Weaver, of Clearfield, was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term the minimum of which is one year at hard labor.

This photograph, taken in the Dardanelles, shows the return of a seaplane to a cruiser after making a flight over the Turkish fortifications. One of the wings was perforated by the rifle fire from the Turks. The seaplane is being taken in tow by a cutter.

Charged with having stolen a revolver and $20 at Irwona early in April, William Fletcher, of the same place, was sentenced to the county jail for four months, to pay a fine of $1 and costs of prosecution. Irvin Blackhart, of Philipsburg, who was indicted for having received stolen goods, was remanded to jail for further investigation.

Frank Koren, of near St. Marys, charged with breaking into a box car which was partially filled with brick, was discharged. The prisoner had served 14 days in jail.

TELEPHONE PROVED VERY CONVENIENT

During the visit of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to Clearfield yesterday not the least among the enthusiastic courtesies extended the visitors by our local interests was the special telephone service supplied to the train by the Huntingdon & Clearfield Telephone company. Arrangements were previously made for special connections at various points along Third street and, as the train rolled into Market street, wires were passed through the car windows, a Pittsburgh connection established and the visitors immediately began to get in touch with their various home interests.

This Pittsburgh connection was maintained continuously from the time the train arrived until it departed except the brief interval during which the cars were being shifted when the connections were immediately re-established with the result that the Chamber of Commerce excursionists were enabled to keep in touch with their home business and direct their affairs as conveniently as though they had been in their home city. That this service on the part of H. & C. was appreciated is evidenced by the many expressions of approval and the praises given by the Pittsburgh excursionists.

One wholesale merchant who was at dinner when the train arrived at Clearfield and who then hurried out to meet his customers, returned to the train just a few minutes before its departure, his Pittsburgh number was called, he received a complete report from his office, putting him in touch with the general business news concerning matters requiring his attention, gave instructions for their execution and closed his conversation after the train had started to pull out.

2,000,000 LABORERS INTERESTED

Provisions of Workmen's Compensation Law

EMPLOYERS LIABLE

Will Increase Application of Safety Devices and Methods in the State

Rates of Compensation for Workmen Injured in Any Occupation Embraced in the Provisions of the Act and Amounts to be Paid to Surviving Widow and Children in Case of the Accidental Death of the Wage Earner—No Compensation to Any One Individual to Exceed $1000—Administration of the Law.

(By United Press)

Harrisburg, May 20.—The seven measures comprising the workmen's compensation act, passed by the 1915 session of the state legislature, constitute the biggest piece of legislation along economic lines that has been spread upon the statute books of Pennsylvania in a half century. While it is not certain that the constitutionality of the act will not be attacked by various employers, Governor Brumbaugh, Attorney General Brown and others believe that the act will stand the final test.

The new law will bring upwards of 2,000,000 working people of this state within its provisions and is expected to lessen human suffering by causing a more rigorous application of safety devices and methods, and to re-pay, in some measure, those individuals and their dependents who suffer directly from accidents in mill-wheels of industry.

The seven statutes comprising the workmen's compensation act provide: 1. For the defining of employer's liability and the stipulation of the amounts of compensation. 2. For the administration of the act. 3. For the creation of a state fund for the insurance of compensation. 4. For the establishment of employers' mutual liability insurance associations. 5. For protecting employees by strict regulations of workmen's compensation policies issued to employers by commercial insurance companies. 6. For exempting domestic and agricultural workers from the provisions of the act. 7. For the repeal of a section of the constitution which would make the new act inoperative.

The workmen's compensation act will be effective Jan. 1, 1916. The first section of the act makes the employer liable for the injuries suffered by his workmen, and abolishes the old common law defense of negligence of "fellow servants." It provides that every employer shall insure the payment of compensation, unless given exemption by the state bureau.

Rate of Compensation
The rate of compensation shall be: For first 500 weeks total disability, 50 per cent of the wages of the injured employee, to amount to not more than $10 nor less than $5 per week; unless employee received less than $5 wages weekly, in latter instance to be paid actual wage. The aggregate amount to be paid any employee shall not be over $4,000. If the employee is only partially disabled, he shall be compensated as above. No payments are made until two weeks after employee is incapacitated.

For the loss of a hand, an employee shall be paid 50 per cent for 215 weeks; foot, 150 weeks; leg 215 weeks eye, 125 weeks, loss of both arms, eyes, hands or feet shall constitute total disability. The employer shall furnish hospital and medical service. In case of death the following rates of compensation shall be paid for 300 weeks:

To child or children if no widow or widower, 25 per cent of wages of deceased, with 10 per cent additional for each child in excess of two, with maximum of 50 per cent to be paid guardians.
To widow or widower, with one child 45 per cent of wages of deceased; with two children 50 per cent; three children 55 per cent and four 60 per cent.

If neither widow or widower or children survive, then to any dependent 20 per cent of deceased's wages.
If brother or sister dependent, 15 per cent for one brother or sister and 5 per cent for each additional brother or sister, with 25 per cent as maximum.
Children include step, adopted, and posthumous. Compensation shall continue.

STATE INQUIRES ABOUT CLEARFIELD GARBAGE PLANT

Wants to Know When Borough Will Begin Work on The Same

Council Ready to Order Work on Construction of an Incinerating Plant as Soon as Legal Difficulties Are Overcome—Other Matters Before Lawmakers.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of town council was held last evening with ten members present. Thomas Beahan, in the absence of President Kerr, acted as president. The report of Treasurer Wright showed balance of $23,233.00 in the treasury.

The street commissioner reported the progress of the street work and the completion of the sanitation sewer on Ninth street at a cost of $310. This amount will be assessed against the abutting property owners. The borough engineer recommended that work on the new sewer on Stinky run be started, and also reported on other engineering matters.

The board of health reported on a letter received from the state board of health in regard to the garbage plant. The latter was notified that the funds are in readiness for the construction of an incinerator, the work to begin as soon as the legal matters in the case are disposed of.

Dr. A. M. Woodward was present and asked that the alley leading to Cherry street from Guilich avenue and West Cherry street be opened. Ed. Pooler, of the Second ward, asked that the alley in the rear of his property on Park avenue be graded. Both the foregoing matters were referred to the street committee.

The street committee was directed to lower the walk in front of the Kennard property on the corner of Fourth and Margaretta streets.

This committee was also directed to proceed with the work of procuring bids for material with which to construct the new conduit on Stinky run with the purpose of getting this work started as soon as possible.

The fire alarm apparatus arrived yesterday and the work of installing same will likely begin the first of next week.

Friday night's musical entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium will be the musical treat of the year. An elaborate program has been arranged for advanced pupils of the Susquehanna College of Music, which will appeal strongly to the musically inclined. N 19-20.

Anton Kuepferle, a Spy, Commits Suicide in Jail

(By United Press)
London, May 20.—Anton Kuepferle, formerly a resident of New York, who was arrested in connection with the espionage case of the late Sir Basil Blackett, committed suicide in the prison of Brixton, London, today.

(By United Press)
Washington, May 20.—Germany has unofficially acquiesced generally in the principal demands of President Wilson's note demanding that Americans be protected and safeguarded on the high seas, but takes the ground that it is contrary to international law to protect Americans on any other than legally American-registered vessels or on belligerent merchantmen. This is the general outline of the answer which will be given to America, as reported to Ambassador Gerard.

Will Help to Settlement
A strong note from President Wilson to Great Britain, calling that nation to account for illegal interference with American commerce and the commerce of other neutral nations, is counted upon to aid the amicable settlement of difficulties with Germany compliance with the terms presented in the president's note upon the sinking of the Lusitania.

There is no question that ample reason exists why the note should be addressed to Great Britain. But this reason has existed with just as great force, since the beginning of the war.

Washington, May 20.—When Dr. Dernberg, Germany's unofficial spokesman in this country, leaves the United States he probably will not carry any safe conduct from the British government.

It has been announced at the German embassy that Dr. Dernberg has decided that the time has come for him to leave this country, and it became known also that he desired a safe conduct from the British embassy to guard him on the return voyage to Germany.

Good evening! Be patient; the liar and the hypocrite will receive their just reward.

EDUCATION EASY IN UNITED STATES

It has been said, and truly, too, that the American citizen does not appreciate the blessings which are provided him through the common schools. It has been proven that foreigners in this country see and take advantage of the opportunities presented to them to acquire an education in the schools of the United States. It has been found that the children of foreign residents are quick to learn and love to go to school. In their classes they often excel the American pupils and win honors which the American children regard indifferently.

Russian people have been held up by Germany as a menace to "culture" and civilization, but Russian children in the United States display none of the traits of the heathen. One little Russian girl, a student in the Denver university, Colorado, may be taken as a fair example of how the children of alien parents look upon education and of how highly they regard the boon of public schools. This little Russian has just finished a four years course in three years, and to show her appreciation of America and American educational facilities she says:

"I like American schools better than Russian. There is more informality. Here the teachers are more your friends and not set apart at a great distance as in Russian schools.

"It is so easy to learn here in America. The chance is so good. Education costs so much less. And, in fact, many of them, do not seem to care to study. In Russia it is a burning to learn and they have no chance. In America the chance is so easy that it is not appreciated."

American children have every opportunity to become well educated, but in the days of money worship and love for worldly pomp and social prominence too many American mothers fail to value an education as they should. It is not likely that such instances as the above will move the parents of American children to change their views regarding school privileges, and thus it will be left to the children of foreign residents to attain those higher standards of living which make for good citizenship and fit the children of men for the duties which they are expected to perform when they reach maturity.

All things come to him who waits—even the bill collector.

SWAT THE FLY AND SWAT HARD

The weather has not been too cool to prevent the fly from emerging from his winter retreat and become an active agent in spreading disease germs. The advance heralds of the fly army are here and they are spying out the filthy spots in the town upon which the army will camp through the long summer months, foraging from the filth trenches into the homes of the citizens.

If the people of Clearfield desire to prevent the multiplication of flies and to lessen the danger of having contagious and infectious diseases become epidemic in the town they will swat the fly that is here now and reduce the number of flies which otherwise will make their appearance later.

Far better than swatting the flies is to remove every vestige of filth upon which they thrive. Everything which attracts flies should be destroyed or buried out of sight. If the flies have nothing to feed upon they will not tarry long about the premises of a citizen. A little attention to extra cleanliness at this time may prevent suffering and probable death among the infant population of Clearfield this summer.

Had the kaiser been placed in an insane asylum ten years ago there would not have been a war in Europe today.

GERMANY'S ANSWER NEXT WEEK

Germany's answer to the note of President Wilson that submarine murder of women and children on the high seas shall cease is not expected until next week, and upon the tone of the German statement will depend whether or not the United States government will be compelled to send to Berlin a more positive statement as to the position of this country in the matter of submarine warfare upon neutral nations.

The intimation from Berlin is that Germany will not accede to the request of the American government that submarine warfare on neutral vessels or on vessels carrying neutrals shall cease. With her usual disregard for the truth Germany insists that England was to blame for the loss of American lives on the Lusitania because she used the ship as a carrier of munitions of war. If this shall be the gist of the German note then the president will have to make his protest much stronger than his original declaration of Germany's methods of naval warfare.

The German government is throwing the William P. Fry case to the winds, and is answering the president's note by insisting that the many is not in the majority. It is plain to see that the Fry case should be handled through diplomatic channels, and Germany's answer in this respect has served to increase the feeling of animosity against the German government among the American people.

Clearfield citizens did themselves proud in their entertainment of the Pittsburgh visitors yesterday, and it is hoped that the enthusiasm aroused among the people of town will not die out suddenly.

Time is Drawing Short to Plan Work on Roads

Harrisburg, May 20.—Has your county fallen into line for the project? The time is drawing nearer each day. Better get together and start a county "State-wide Good Roads Day" association. Remember, the date is Wednesday, May 26.

The state highway department, which is doing all that it can to arouse interest in the plan, reports that the enthusiasm manifested in many of the counties indicates that the "State-wide Good Roads Day" is going to be successful beyond all expectations.

Somerset county is more fortunate than some other counties in having state highways, but it is enthusiastic in its support of the "State-wide Good Roads Day" plan. The board of trade of Somerset has taken the lead in making arrangements for the day and is cooperating with the Myersdale Commercial club, the Boswell chamber of commerce, the Salisbury civic club and the Windber

I think of thee—

When kindly night is falling,

When star to star is calling,

When moon and sky in quiet hours descend,

When o'er my head the azure heavens bend;

In dusk or dawn, in travail, or, in strife,

In all the golden interludes of life—I think of thee.

I think of thee—

When day's long tasks are o'er,

In summer silence by the vine-clad door;

In busy throngs and haunts of teeming care,

In gentle moments where no shadows fare;

In light and dark, in dusk and dawn for eyes,

When morning breaks, when twilight haunts the sky—I think of thee.

I think of thee—

When round me thunders rattle,

When I stand forth to face and fight the battle;

In hours of rest, in journey or in playing,

In moments filled with fancies gently straying;

In hope, in trust, in courage, dread and doubt;

In deep, in dreams when star by star goes out—I think of thee.

Peanut Industry Large.

Virginia still leads in the production of peanuts with Oklahoma and Texas following.

The last year's crop was 1,000,000 bushels, valued at $10,000,000.

Curiously enough, Marseilles, France, is the greatest peanut consumer in the world, owing to the use made of the nut in the production of oil which substitutes to a great extent, for olive oil.

2,000,000 LABORERS INTERESTED

time to children until 15 years old at rate of 15 per cent. of wages for each child, 10 per cent. additional for each additional child, with a maximum of 50 per cent. payable.

Compensation to alien dependent widows and children, not resident of U. S. shall be 2-3 of amount in each case for residents. However, an employer may commute at any time all future installments to any alien dependent, except widows and children.

The administration of the workmen's compensation act shall be by the bureau of workmen's compensation in the department of labor.

The bureau shall consist of three commissioners, appointed by the commissioner of the department, who shall receive $7,000 annually. They are to be selected quadrennially, and approved by the governor. The chairman who receives $500 additionally annually, is designated by the commissioner.

The bureau has authority to appoint the state into ten districts and appoint ten referees at $2,500 annually, to have charge of all claims for compensation. The bureau would hear and determine petitions taken from the referee. The commissioner, and referees would have power to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, require production of documents, etc. and to affix costs of hearings.

Each referee would have one clerk at $1,000 annually, and a messenger at $1,000. The bureau could employ three clerks at $2,000 and 24 at $1,400. The commissioners would have a joint secretariat at $1,000.

State Insurance Fund

The creation and administration of a state fund for insurance of compensation for injuries to employees and subscribers thereto will be in the hands of the State Workmen's Insurance board. This consists of the commissioner of labor, John P. Jackson, Commissioner of Insurance, Charles Johnson and State Treasurer Young.

The duties of the board will be to publish annually on October 1 schedule of premiums or rate of insurance for employers.

To fix rates for applicants (employers) according to the nature of their business and to stipulate requirements for safety for workmen and to make rules that would tend to prevent accidents.

To make contracts for the supplying of medical and hospital services.

Five per cent. of all premiums paid by employers would be set aside for creating a surplus to cover the catastrophe hazard. At the end of each year if any portion of the premiums paid remain, after deducting compensations, and expenses, it shall be distributed among the subscribers according to proportionate premium paid or credited to next year's insurance.

A company which is not a subscriber to the state fund may apply for state insurance by paying past premium for the year and amount of premium for subsequent years.

For the purpose of the act, the state fund shall be a separate fund.

Mutual Liability Association

When 20 or more employers have in the aggregate not less than 5,000 employees in Pennsylvania, they may form a mutual liability association.

an incorporated mutual liability insurance association, for the purpose of insuring themselves and such other employers as may become subscribers to the association for paying workmen's compensation. These associations may have salaried officers. The boards of directors shall make reasonable rules and regulations for the prevention of injuries upon the premises of subscribers. The boards would determine the amount of premiums which subscribers shall pay, according to the risk involved. Subscribers who neglected to provide safety regulations could be ousted from the association for his premiums boosted. Five per cent. of premiums shall be set aside to cover the catastrophe hazard and to guarantee of any. All acts of the board of directors would be subject to approval of the state bureau. A mutual liability association would have to be safely invested.

Protection of Compensation

An additional guarantee of compensation, when employers are insured by commercial companies, is found in the following:

"No policy of insurance against liability shall be made unless the same shall contain the agreement of the insured that in the event of the failure of the insured to pay promptly an installment of compensation to an injured employee or dependents that the obligation shall not be affected by any default of the insured after the accident, in the payment of premiums."

"Such agreement shall be a direct promise to such injured employee and dependents enforceable by court action."

The state workmen's compensation fund and every insurance association or corporation shall file with the commissioner of insurance its classification of risks and premiums for approval. The insurance commissioner has power to revoke any license.

CHECKS FOR LARGE AMOUNTS

One Drawn for Forty Nine Million Dollars Set a High Record Recently.

Last Wednesday Kuhn Loeb & Co. turned a check for $10,000,000 over to the Pennsylvania railroad in payment for the bonds recently purchased. That check was $9,000,000 larger as far as Wall street could recall this week than any which ever passed through the financial district.

On May 7, 1904, Secretary Shaw left Washington for New York with a check in his pocket for $10,000,000 drawn to J. P. Morgan & Co. who represented the French syndicate in the Panama canal transaction. That same year, Secretary Shaw turned a check for $40,000,000 over to Mexico in connection with the preface of government bonds.

Any number of checks for smaller amounts were recalled. On Feb. 8, 1900, $5,000,000 was drawn in connection with the purchase by Lake Shore of Reading stock. A year ago one for $2,000,000 was drawn on the Bank of Commerce for $2,000,000 to pay for city bonds. Only a few weeks ago a check for $18,000,000 drawn by the Consolidated Gas, passed through the National City bank.

"I can recall 20 years ago," an official of one of the large Wall street institutions said, "when a crowd would gather around our bank to get a look at a check for $100,000. Nowadays no attention is paid to a check for $1,000,000 or $10,000,000 except to make the necessary routine arrangements to prevent a disturbance of balance."

When that remark was repeated in a well-known international banker he replied with a laugh. "Sometimes they don't even do that." —New York Evening Post

"Salomy Jane"
This famous play, a dramatization of Bert Harte's novel will be presented at the opera house on Friday night in 6 reels. The scene of the play is laid in Hangtown, California's most notorious mining town in the days of the rush for gold, when there was no law except that of each man for himself and the survival of the one who could pull a gun quickest. Salomy Jane is the daughter of one of the town's inhabitants, who has emigrated from Kentucky and is the object of the affections of every single man in the camp. Rufe is her choice and when Baldwin insults her she offers to marry him, providing he kills Baldwin. He is afraid to do this, but when "The Man" kills Baldwin for betraying his sister, he tells Salomy that he did the deed and they become engaged, but not for long for Rufe is soon shown up in his true colors. The picture is full of exciting incidents and portrays the life in '49 when so much history was made.

The law requires that every teacher employed to teach in the public schools of this commonwealth must be a person of good moral character, and must be at least eighteen years of age. Applicants attending summer schools should take the examination at the close of their schools. Persons attending school outside of the county may enter the class most convenient for them. For provisional certificates the examination in pedagogy will be based on the following texts: Gregory's "Better Schools," and Seeley's "New School Management," or the "Rural School, Its Methods and Management," may be substituted for the latter.

Each applicant on entering the class will give the superintendent a self-addressed stamped envelope, accompanied with a recommendation as to his or her moral character.

Teachers whose certificates average 1-4 and who present testimonials from their boards certifying that they have taught two successful terms of school are eligible to enter the professional examination. The books required in pedagogy for professional certificates are Seeley's "New School Management," and Cutler and Stone, "The Rural School."

A professional spirit, progressive scholarship and the ability to teach effectively are necessary qualifications to merit a professional certificate.

All teachers taking the examination must be familiar with the requirements of the State Course of Study.

County Superintendent.

Clearfield H. S. Defeated

One of the best games of baseball of this season was played Wednesday afternoon on the Curwensville diamond when the Clearfield high school team met defeat in the eleventh inning when Clark, of the Curwensville high school, rolled one to short, which was badly handled, scoring Lantz. Score, 6-5.

The Clearfield team put up a good game and tried to introduce some new rules, but does not seem to get much support from its home town.

KENT'S LAST THROW

By ELLA DEAN RICHMOND.

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

From early boyhood Kent Marvin had been a "thrower." Quick of eye, sure of nerve, just as certain persons were born with some predominating skill, his lay in accuracy of aim. No one had ever excelled him in throwing a bean bag, or in duck-on-the-rock, or at quoits. Later on he became the champion pitcher of the local baseball team. He did not make a profession or trade of it, but he could knock an apple off a tree branch with a pebble every time. He threw a bouquet straight into the arms of pretty Lina Westworth when she graduated, and that led to their rare and charming love romance.

Of late Kent had got to throwing something else—dice, at the village billiard hall. This had led to his associating with a pretty rapid crowd. Among them was a profligate idler with plenty of money named Harper Winston. If Kent had analyzed affairs he would have found that Winston was scheming to discredit him with Lina so as to win her for himself.

Two nights previous down at the billiard hall Winston had introduced Kent and his friends to a city friend, Mr. Halpin he called him. They had drank considerable and Kent escorted Halpin to the hotel. The next morning a friend of Kent came to him and told him that Halpin had lost a diamond ring and accused Kent of stealing it, as he was the last person with him the night previous.

Things looked pretty black for Kent. He hid in the room of a friend all that day. He made up his mind that Lina would have nothing further to do with an accused thief. In a fit of desperation Kent decided to leave the village for good and started to do so at midnight, when he saw the town marshal approaching him.

Kent rushed down a side street out of sight of the marshal. Then a square farther on as he saw a pedestrian approaching him he leaped a fence and ran through a garden. His overstrained fears led him to seek a hiding place. He made out a large log house. It was empty. Kent crawled into it.

"What to do next?" he panted helplessly. "Oh, I am in a terrible fix!"

As he lay among the straw, a hunted fugitive, Kent reflected how his careless habits had probably cost him the position of his life. Two weeks previous a friend had suggested that he apply to the railway mail service in the city for an appointment. Kent did so, and wonderfully attracted the attention and admiration of the agent of the government with the accuracy and swiftness with which he was able to throw mail.

He was advised that his references would be looked up and if he passed muster he would be offered a good position. Now, an accused thief, they would scarcely consider him.

Kent fell asleep. He was awakened perhaps two hours later by the sound of low voices. Peering out, he saw two men, strangers to him.

"Look here," one of them was saying, "we've held up one man and looted four houses. There's one more in the block. You rest the booty and guard it while I see if there's anything else worth getting. Then we'll go to our automobile in the woods and speed for the city. We'll do up these country yahoos in good style, while we're about it."

"Burglars! and their booty is in that satchel!" breathed Kent.

One of the men disappeared. The other set his foot on the satchel and kept guard. A sudden impulse flashed through the mind of Kent Marvin. He would outwit these bold schemers.

He reached out and seized the limb of the sentinel burglar. At the same time he imitated the snarling bark of a dog. Naturally the burglar was startled and fell back.

In an instant Kent was out of the dog house and on his feet. He snatched up the satchel.

"Drop that! Who are you?" and the burglar, partly recovering himself, flashed a revolver.

Just then Kent saw a light in an upper room of the despoiled mansion. Some one was awake there. He gave the satchel a swing. As "a thrower" he was at his best. It described an accurate parabola curve.

Crash! bang! clatter!—through the window it went, while Kent shouted lustily:

"Burglars—phone for the police!"

The burglar fired at Kent. The shot missed him. He stooped and picked up a heavy piece of wood. Again a fling. Down went the burglar senseless, and as his companion appeared Kent grappled with him and held him till two servants came rushing from the mansion.

His part in recovering some $5,000 stolen booty would have helped Kent in public estimation anyway, but a discovery cleared him of all taint of crime.

The man the burglars had robbed on the street was Harper Winston, and among their booty was found the missing diamond ring, evidencing a conspiracy and clearing Kent.

The next day there came a notification from the railway postal service awarding Kent the coveted position.

His reputation earnest and sincere, softened fair Lina's heart. She was through throwing dice, his chances away, and other foolish actions. Lina believed him and threw herself in his arms and forgave him.

Coal Companies Say Roads Discriminate

Washington May 19.—Charging discrimination and a violation of the act to regulate commerce, the Dilltown Smokeless Coal company of Brookville, Jefferson county, Pennsylvania, has filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the Pennsylvania and Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad. S. S. Henderson, vice President of the coal company, signs the complaint.

The coal mines of the Dilltown company are located in Indiana county, along the Black Lick branch of the Cresson division of the Pennsylvania railroad. The market in question is Buffalo and Black Rock, N. Y. It is alleged that the defendant carriers discriminate against the Dilltown company and in favor of its competitors, whose mines are but a few miles away. According to the brief of Vice President Henderson, the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad refuses to furnish empty cars for the loading of the complainant's bituminous coal, but almost daily gives adequate facilities to competing concerns, despite the fact that the Dilltown company has had constructed, at its own expense, a siding from the railroad to the coal works. It is charged against the Pennsylvania railroad that it will not accept shipments from the Dilltown company for less than $1.25 per ton to Buffalo and Black Rock, but carries coal for competing concerns at a rate of $1.10 per ton.

TWO EXCELLENT CROPS

Benefit of Use of Leguminous Crops Just Appreciated.

Aggressive Campaign Waged for Past Few Years in Interest of Better Farming Has Not Been Without Its Reward.

(By T. PARKER.)

The soy bean, also known as Japan pea and soja bean, is one of the many good things that have come to us from Asia. The writer first grew it in 1872, but its real worth and value have not been appreciated by us until within the last few years.

As a forage crop, especially for hogs, it is exceptionally fine. For best results the hogs should be turned on them about the time the bean in the pod has reached its full size, and before it begins to harden while the leaves are still green. The hogs will first eat the leaves, then the remainder of the plant until there is only the hard stalk left.

Soy beans require good preparation of the soil. Slipshod methods usually result in a failure of the crop. They may either be sown broadcast at the rate of a bushel per acre or planted in rows and cultivated. The latter plan gives best results. In purchasing seed, buy only bright, plump seed, the vitality of which is guaranteed.

Soy bean hay is of the finest and most nutritious quality. When cut at the proper stage of growth and well cured, it is relished by all kinds of stock.

The velvet bean is an important crop for the purpose of soil improvement, especially in cotton-growing territory. This plant has been grown in Florida and other southern states for a number of years. It is a rank-growing grass, the vines often growing fifteen or more feet in length under favorable conditions. The seed can be broadcasted or planted in rows, but best results will be obtained when planted in rows and cultivated. The rows should be four or five feet apart and the hills two to three feet apart in the rows. Plant about three beans to the hill.

ERRORS IN FEEDING PROTEIN

Plenty of Right Kind of Feed Is Required to Run Milk Machine to Its Full Limit.

It is a great mistake to give the cow indifferent care until her milk flow has greatly diminished, then try, by feeding her heavy, to get her back to her full flow.

The dairyman who withholds protein foods until the cows have cleaned up all roughage will soon learn the folly of his ways when he adds the figures of his milk checks.

A worse mistake than high protein feeding is made by many farmers. That mistake is not feeding enough of anything.

The man who goes into the dairy business thinking that selecting good cows and compounding balanced rations is all he needs to understand is sure to wake up a sadder and wiser man.

It requires plenty of feed to run the cow machine to its full limits. This limit varies more than most people seem to think.

Philadelphia Quality Mowers Have stood the test of a third of a century, and while the patterns have been improved very generally and the claims put forth that this is the Other Machine was "Just as Good as the Philadelphia," the quality has not been approached by any other manufacturer.

$16,000,000 WORTH OF CARS ORDERED

Orders for $16,000,000 worth of freight cars were given Tuesday by the Pennsylvania railroad. This is by far the largest expenditure of money for equipment made by a railroad in several years and is taken as indication of the return of prosperity. Work upon these orders will give employment to thousands of men all over the country.

The $16,000,000 is the greater part of the $20,000,000 recently appropriated by the Pennsylvania for the replacement of its rolling stock. The other $4,000,000 will be spent by the railroad itself in the manufacture of locomotives at its Altoona shops. All the money will be spent during this year.

The orders given yesterday are for 14,043 cars of all kinds for use on the lines both east and west of Pittsburg. In this total are included 3500 box cars, 324 refrigerator cars, 3000 gondola cars and 7219 hopper cars.

Supervisors Should Keep Accurate Record

Township supervisors should bear in mind that the state highway department would like to have the secretary of each board of supervisors keep an accurate account of the number of men and teams they have on the roads and the number of dollars worth of work done by them on "Good Roads Day" sent to Clearfield office.

The object is two fold; first, to determine the exact results of the good roads day in a financial way, and second, that there may be some competition among different townships, in order that the result may be as great as could possibly be expected and arouse a desire for each township to try to do the most work.

TO SUIT THE FIGURE

Lines of Costume Must Be Carefully Fashioned.

Combinations and Blending of Colors and Materials Also Require the Most Careful Manipulation—Dainty Design Shown.

It is one of the important features of the fashions that, with all the tendency to frills and ruffles, there is usually a symmetrical arrangement of trimming. This prevents the general ensemble from assuming the mixed-up appearance that might result if this rule were not observed. There are, in the achievement of such "balance," innumerable subtle details that, though they tax the ingenuity of the designer, perhaps, to the utmost, pass unnoticed or at least unappreciated by the casual observer.

Combinations and blending of colors and materials require careful manipulation if they are to be successful, and incidental trimming should be of such a nature as to preserve the intended character of the lines of a costume. Above all, the lines should be so constructed that they will conform in length and breadth to suit the figure they are to adorn.

The dainty design illustrated, for instance, would suit none other than a slender, rather tall young figure. It is essentially a youthful frock and designed for dancing and evening wear.

One of the New Dance Frocks.

with numerous dainty details that make of it a veritable confection.

It is carried out in white chiffon with a quaint little bolero of turquoise tulle. Note how prettily the overlapping end is caught through eyelets in the other side. There is a short-sleeved underbust of white chiffon with snow-white edges bound flatly in white tulle. The full skirt is garnished with two rows of double head in the blue tulle, while the tunic, short in front and long in back shows the saw-tooth edges again bound in white tulle.

Pink roses weight the ends of short ribbon streamers all around the waist and add the final irresistible touch.

HATS OF THE SUIT MATERIAL

Parisian Milliner Has Evolved Idea That American Women Will Be Sure to Take Up.

The well-dressed Parisienne is wearing now a small, smart hat made of straw and cloth in combination; the cloth being a bit of the same fabric used for stunning tailored suits. One of these hats, just brought over from Madeline—the originator of the idea—is of bronze milan straw with a crown in blocked effect made of tan covert cloth. The underbrim is of the straw and bands of straw are stitched over cloth to form the upper side of the brim. Around the high crown are three bands of grosgrain ribbon, one cream white, the next tan color, the next brown. The ribbons pass through a pearl buckle at the front of the hat and are tied in a flat, smart bow at the back. These little tailored hats—elongated in shape and with very narrow brims that drop over the hair or turn up in turban style—are an important style note of the spring and are the rage in Paris just now.

For some time women have been ordering button boots with tops made of material to match the tailored suit; but hats of the same material are rather a new note. In Paris the little tailored suit hat is called Le Chapeau-Tailleur and one sees it made of covert, of broadcloth, of tulle, of mohair and wool mixtures, of gabardine and of serge, with always the underbrim of straw and the simple stand and buckle trimming originated by Madeline. With these small, trim hats are worn veils of tulle or bladders mesh drawn neatly under a veil pin at the back and not floating free, as veils are worn with sailor shapes that have sufficient width of brim to support the veil in canopy effect.

HAITIANS NOT ALL SAVAGES

Iceland Has a Literature of Its Own and Many Refined and Educated People.

Very few are familiar with conditions in Haiti. The fact that it has a literature, groups of refined and educated people in all the important towns, distinguished doctors and lawyers who would rank high in any country, is not at all generally known. The official language of the country is French, and all educated persons, of course, speak this language. The books of Haitian authors are written in this language. The native literature is now becoming considerable.

embraces almost all departments and some of it is of a high order. The early writers wrote history and ephemeral poetry. The principal historians are Madiou and Ardouin, who both wrote well-known histories of Haiti. Mr. J. N. Leger, ex-minister to the United States, has also written an interesting history of Haiti.

Within the last few years Mr. Magloire has published a history of Haitian revolutions. Among the writers of romance, Demessure Delorme, who has been called the father of Haitian literature, takes first place. He wrote "Francisca," "Les Theoriciens au Pouvoir" and "La Hollande." He was decorated by the emperor of Germany, the pope and the sultan of Turkey. Frederic Marcelin, Ferdinand Hibbert, Antoine Innocent and others have written very interesting stories portraying Haitian life, manners and customs.

Docks Building at Bombay.

Bombay is possessed of the biggest docks east of Suez, but the port has been wanting in respect of facilities for taking railway borne goods to the dock side and vice versa. This defect is being remedied little by little by the extension of the Port Trust railway from one end of the port to the other, and seven stations are to be opened for goods traffic during the course of a month.
